So, what do we understand by the term 'Interior Design'?

A dictionary definition depicts that it is '...the process of shaping the experience of interior space, through the manipulation of spatial volume as well as surface treatment.....draws on aspects of environmental psychology, architecture, product design and furniture design in addition to traditional decoration.'

Essentially, Interior Designers deal with all aspects of the internal space provided in all sorts of buildings and is likely to be involved with varying types of work; E.g. Commercial projects, offices, hotels, gyms, restaurants, public spaces and others as well as all types of domestic work.

Interior Designers will detail all aspects involved with the interior space; the surfaces (walls, floors, windows) of a property, the colour scheme, style, paints, wallpaper, flooring, fabrics, furniture etc.

Interior designers would not usually get involved in the major structural changes of the property, yet g2 Design are capable of dealing with the simple refurbishments through to major structural changes.
